Let's Learn Moor 2020

'Free outdoor education in the uplands, by the people and organisation who protect and enhance the habitats and local communities'

As parliamentarians who understand the importance of moorland habitats, we wholeheartedly welcome the 'Let's Learn Moor' initiative which is inviting over 3000 primary school children onto moors to learn about the importance of upland management and conservation.

Let's Learn Moor (LLM) is coordinated by the British Association for Shooting and Conservation (BASC) and now in its fifth year. LLM is a FREE educational project that helps educate and inspire children about our iconic upland habitats, the species that live there and the people who help protect and enhance it. This year #LLM20 events will be hosted at 16 different venues across the UK inviting children onto local grouse moors to meet with organisations who help to manage and protect these important habitats. With around 50 organisations in total taking part this year including...

Alongside the fire service, local police, mountain rescue, farmers, wildlife organisations and gamekeepers, children will experience sponge like sphagnum mosses that can hold incredible amounts of water, insect eating sundew plants along with hearing the call of the iconic curlew or watching soaring birds of prey. Schools will see native red grouse and their chicks hiding in the heather, learn about fire safety, solve rural crimes with the police and even rescue their teachers on a stretcher.

LLM is taking part all over the UK in locations such as the Peak District, Nidderdale, Yorkshire Dales, North York Moors, Forest of Bowland, Northumberland, Cumbria, North Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland.

We strongly support the countryside and the habitats, wildlife and communities which live within it.
