

Deputy Head of Publications

Starting salary: Competitive

BASC is the largest shooting organisation in the UK, serving a growing membership of around 155,000 and a wide variety of stakeholder and public interests. It acts as a representative body for sporting shooting - fostering opportunity, safety, high standards and wildlife conservation.

This is a rare opportunity to join the team that publishes Shooting and Conservation magazine. S&C is the largest field sports magazine in the UK and is rightly considered the voice of shooting.

BASC is looking for an individual with proven magazine experience to assist in the production of the magazine while also helping manage our wider publications function, which includes market-leading books and other shooting-related material.

The successful candidate will demonstrate:

- Ability to develop and implement publications strategy
- Excellent editorial skills.
- Planning and organisational skills.
- Management experience in leading a team.
- Proven experience of working in larger communications team including digital media.
- Support for the values of BASC.

Working within the communications team and reporting to the Head of Publications, the post holder will be based as BASC's Marford Mill headquarters but home working will be encouraged in line with the demands of the role.
